

Battle Backgrounds

Data Format

The first three bytes are pointers to GFX sets. This is just a theory from an understanding of a forum post: if pointer is $FF, it will use second half of previous valid tileset (tiles $80-$FF). In the case of pointer 0 being $FF, maybe it use second half of tileset 1, this has to be confirmed. Byte $03 is a tile assembly pointer and byte $04 is always the same, hence it is not repeated in the table. Byte $05 is the palette ID and if bit 7 is set it mean the background has the wavy (heat) effect.
